Some of the Many Reasons to Join DPCA

This issue of the newsletter contains a membership form to join the Douglas Park Civic Association. DPCA is a community group that works to improve our community. Membership is only $10, and everyone is welcome to join. The more people who join, the stronger a neighborhood we are. Our neighborhood has over 1,000 households. In recent years, fewer than 200 people have sent in membership dues. I'd like to see that number go way up. Here's just a partial list of what the civic association has done over the past year:

1. Left Turns at Columbia Pike and Glebe Road

Civic association leaders have dogged the county for two and a half years to have the left turn lanes at all four approaches to the Columbia Pike and Glebe Road intersection built. Led by past president Reid Goldstein and me, with the unflagging efforts of county board member and neighbor Chris Zimmerman, these lanes are now being constructed.

2. Creation of permanent night-time parking zone.

Zone 21, approved by the county in May and implemented in fall 2003, has alleviated the ongoing night-time parking problems adjacent to the apartments on Four Mile Run.

3. Fourth of July Celebration

This year, as in the past 21 years, the civic association will sponsor the neighborhood's biggest community celebration, the Fourth of July parade and picnic. Plans for this year's event are already under way; your dues will help offset the cost of live music, amusements, prizes, and food.

4. CERT

A Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) has been formed and trained by the county fire department to respond to our neighbors' medical and safety needs in the event of a major disaster.

5. Involvement in Local Planning

Civic association volunteers greatly influenced the development plans that were approved for Glebe Rd. at 13th St., south of the post office, and they participate in Columbia Pike planning and on countywide commissions. Douglas Park's name is known and respected within county government as a result.

6. Improvements between Quincy St.-Doctor's Run and Douglas Park

Our parks committee is working with the county to install trash cans along the path by Randolph School and to post signs. The committee has also helped with stream clean-up, invasive plant removal, and new plantings at Douglas Park.

7. Traffic Calming on Monroe Street.

As a result of civic association efforts, traffic calming measures have been put in place on Monroe Street (to be completed this spring). They have been approved for Quincy Street and are being considered for 18th Street.

8. Other Works in Progress

Civic Association work is ongoing. Your neighbors are working on other projects, which are in various stages. These include working to get a traffic signal at Glebe Rd. and 12th St. near the post office and Carlyle streetlights on 14th St. between Glebe and Walter Reed.

9. Community News

Through the newsletter you are reading, the Douglas Park Web site (www.arlingtondpca.homestead.com), and our email chat list, we help neighbors keep informed. We also hold monthly meetings that all are welcome to attend.

This is just a partial list of accomplishments and ongoing efforts. By sending your membership dues and volunteering to help, you can play a part in keeping our neighborhood safe, vibrant, and beautiful. Please send in your dues today.

Trees and Transport—Progress on the Pike The March DPCA meeting Pike Initiative Will Make Life Easier

Greg Walker, director of the Pike Transit Initiative described the plans for the Pike intended to make commuting easier and walking a pleasure. Projects include more trees, better parking, clean fuel-powered vehicles, and new communication technologies. Walker was accompanied by Metro staff Robin McElhenny, Kristin Haldeman, and Rob Johnson, who all gave their time to meet with us. There will be more community meetings held to encourage citizen input. To keep up, call 703-892-2776, or see the Web site, www.piketransit.com.

Tree Damage Can Translate to Big Money

If hurricane Isabel or other storm damage gave you a different perspective on trees, then you should have been there to hear what Tom Tyler had to say. He's the county extension agent on care and selection of trees, and he discussed some ways to spot troubled trees:

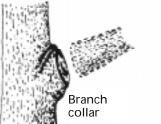

- Big roots above ground, especially with cracks or decay.
- Mushrooms growing on the bark.
- Trees with v-shaped trunks are susceptible to damage.
- Gashes in the bark that indicate damage and invasive pests or disease. The larger it is, the less likely it is to heal.

Tom noted a few trees to avoid planting— alanthus, black locust, and bradford pears, silver maple, some red maples, and Norway maples, among others. Many of these don't have root systems that adapt well in an urban environment. And he discussed good things to do to ensure healthy trees and plants.

- Water a new tree with 10 gallons a week.
- Create a 2-3-inch high "donut"—not a mound—of mulch, around the tree as far out as you can. Eighty-five percent of the roots are in the top 20 percent of the soil and mulch will hold in moisture.
- Trim off dead branches; leave an inch stub beyond the "collar" where it joins the tree—it helps the cut heal.

Tom Tyler prepares his slide show and makes a point about the destructiveness of English ivy, an invasive plant, with a big sample that shows how it strangled a tree. Seated at right is long-time resident and active community member Sedge Moss.

The kindest cuts

- Trim branches that might interfere with power lines or cause other hazards. But trim evenly, so the tree is balanced
- Careful thinning of trees allows light penetration and air movement; it reduces weight and heavy limbs; and can help avoid toppling during high winds.
- Prune before the spring growth flush starts, if possible.
- Don't "top" trees; this damages form and structure.

Tom gave examples of good trees to plant, including black gum, sycamore, and dawn redwood, among others. Resources: Master Gardeners hotline, 703-228-6414. Find a certified arborist from the Web site for the International Society of Arboriculture, www.goodtreecare.com. Attend plant clinics: Thurs., 7-9 pm, April 15-Sept. 7, at Central Library; Mon.-Fri., 9–12 am, at Fairlington Comm. Center, 3308 S. Stafford St.; Sat., 8–11 am, April-Nov., the Farmers Market, N. Courthouse Rd. & 14th.—Dawn Leland

March Stream Cleanup Thanks

Thanks to Nancy Theodore, of the Parks Committee, who led the clean-up of the stream in Douglas Park on March 13. With able help from Sabrina Lintz, the two of them managed to clean most of the trash from the stream, except for the tires that are half buried in the streambed. Efforts to restore the stream will continue in the year to come.

ABC Hearing on Beer and Wine Permit for Hi-Cue Billiards; Civic Association Opposes License

In spring 2002, Hi-Cue Billiards, in the Food Star Shopping Center, applied for a license to serve beer and wine. Hi Cue has been the site of three homicides during the 1990s. At the time of the application, the civic association unanimously opposed the application, as did all neighboring civic associations, the chairman of the county board and the chief of police. The application disappeared from view, but was not actually ruled on. DPCA recently learned that it is being forwarded for decision. The Virginia ABC will hold a hearing on Hi-Cue's application on Monday, April 19, 2004, at 2:00 p.m. at the Alexandria Regional Office, 501 Montgomery Street. To add your name to a petition opposing the license, contact Evalyn Carter, 703-920-5168, evalyncarter@aol.com. --Rebecca Krafft Traffic Calming for 18th St., Open House April 14 Arlington County Transportation Department has identified S. 18TH St. between S. Quincy St. and Walter Reed Dr. as eligible for a traffic calming speed hump project. Residents are invited to an open house on Wed., April 14, to discuss the plans. Residents are concerned about speeding and safety along this segment of roadway. DPCA's neighborhood traffic calming committee requested assistance to resolve this issue. The roadway is classified as a neighborhood-minor street and carries 452 vehicles per day; has 85% of the cars traveling at or below 32 mph.

The view above shows the approach to 18th St. heading south on Monroe St. toward Walter Reed Drive. Stop signs will be moved from Monroe to 18th St. so that traffic on Monroe will no longer stop. This intersection is a problem because many drivers merely slow and don't look, running the stop signs. There have been a several accidents.

For more information about the Arlington Co. Neighborhood Traffic Calming Program see www.co.arlington.va.us/dpw/planning/ntc/index.htm.

If you have questions about the project, contact Susan Finotti, Arl. Dept. of Transportation, 703-228-3575. Here's the schedule for the process:

- April 14, 7pm: Open house, Fire Station No. 9
- April 14–May 14: Petition distribution, signing.
- May 14: Petitions due back to county staff
- June 16: NTCC funding consideration meeting
- July 10: County Board funding meeting

What Are Kids Doing?

Nam Dunbar, a seventh grader at Jefferson Middle School, finished fourth in the Virginia Challenge State Middle School Wrestling Championships held in Norfolk in Jan. Nam wrestled in the 95 lbs. weight class. In the double elimination format, Nam lost to the #1 seeded wrestler in the first round, then wrestled back beating his next six opponents only to face the same #1 seed in the consolation finals, where Nam lost a close 1-0 battle. The tournament is the largest of its kind in Virginia drawing more than 800 middle school wrestlers from across the state.

Major Development Proposed for Arlington Hardware and Adjacent Sites

The Georgelas Group of McLean has submitted the first major development proposal for Columbia Pike issuing from the three-year long Columbia Pike planning process. The project is a condominium building consisting of 257 units with retail storefronts on the first and possibly second levels. The total project contains about 450 underground parking spaces, divided among building residents, retail users and the general public. The project contains space for the Arlington Free Clinic and the developers will provide a temporary site for the clinic during construction. The space being developed for the clinic in the new building will be deeded outright to the clinic at completion.

Where will all this fit? The site consists of the Hardware store property, the free clinic building, the parking lot behind the clinic and the VA power substation. It totals more than Architect's rendering of Blanca's Restaurant at Columbia Pike and Walter Reed with housing set back behind it. The design would include the front of the current hardware store.

How tall? The building tops out at eight stories. Half of the building facing 11th Street will be six stories tall. The front 15 feet of the facades of the Hardware Store and the free clinic will be retained (The clinic frontage will be redesigned; the Hardware store and Blanca's are historic properties, built in 1920.) The new building will be start behind this frontage. With the other small buildings fronting the Pike, the effect from the corner will be to have three steps up, of one (Blanca's), two (Hardware Store) and three stories (clinic). The bulk of the new development will begin behind these fronts, 15 feet back.

Illustrative boards are on display at CPRO (2611 Columbia Pike, 703-892-8992). The project will be reviewed by the planning committee on May 3, and by the county board on May 15. A community meeting is tentatively set for April 26. Call CPRO to confirm time and place.

Townhouses to Break Ground Soon

The Alcova Row townhouse project on Columbia Pike between Quincy and Randolph should break ground soon. The project was approved in May of 2003, and after clearing a number of additional hurdles, is ready to proceed. The project consists of 22 townhouses. All of the units will be built at street level on the Pike and Randolph, eliminating the need for street-front retaining walls, and utilities will be placed underground. Full sidewalks and planting strips will be built, increasing pedestrian safety, and a parking lane along the Pike will also be built.

Arlington's oldest dwelling, and now a museum operated by the Arlington Historical Society, is open on Saturdays, 1–4 pm through Oct. 30. Admission is free. John Ball built the home around 1750. The simple log cabin is one of the few surviving examples of homes lived in by ordinary Virginians during the colonial period. Historical displays and typical furnishings of the period are presented in the house.

The Ball-Sellers House is located at 5620 S. 3rd St. Parking is available at the Glen Carlyn Library, located at the corner of S. Kensington Street and 3rd St. www.arlingtonhistoricalsociety.org

"Thanks for alerting us to this amazing old structure. Four residents of London Square ventured over there this afternoon, and visited the lovely old neighborhood library as well. The Ball House is a very small, plain, two-room structure with a loft, built by a farmer of modest means in the mid-1700's. He, his wife, and their five daughters lived in it. After his death in 1766, it was in the Carlin family for 100 years. It's absolutely unbelievable that such an ancient wooden house can still exist. You can't really see it driving by—going into it and seeing the yard and ancient wisteria is an interesting surprise tucked away in a lovely neighborhood!"

New Service: Red Cross to Provide Free Spanish Translation to Community

The Arlington chapter of the Red Cross is happy to announce the launch of a new Spanish desk, designed to facilitate Red Cross services to Arlington's Spanish-speaking population and provide a Spanish language translation service to the Arlington community. Located at the Arlington Chapter, 4333 Arlington Blvd, the desk is staffed by Spanish-speaking Red Cross volunteers hailing from five different countries.

"I think this service is very important because it will help us understand each other in both directions." said Claudia White, founder of the Spanish desk and a native of Colombia. "It's important for the Spanish-speaking population to learn to communicate in English, but it's also helpful for English speakers to learn to communicate with their neighbors."

The desk will provide translations of documents from Spanish to English or English to Spanish, and will assist Spanish speakers with accessing the Red Cross programs and services available to them like health & safety training, disaster relief, eldercare transportation, and international messaging and tracing.

The Spanish desk will be open Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays, 6–8 pm. All volunteers are bilingual professionals who have committed at least one hour a week to this

"This is just the beginning of our international outreach," said Ms. White, "Arlington is one of the most diverse regions in the nation. According to the latest census survey, one in four residents was born outside of the U.S. and one in three speaks a language other than English at home. In the future, we plan to expand the Spanish desk into a 'language desk' in an effort to reach the rest of the community."

Water Stewardship Program Forms Teams

Do you know where your drinking water comes from, or where the water spiraling down the drain in your sink goes? How about the water that runs off your driveway? Although water is critical to our survival, many people do not know much about the water they use. We all live in a "watershed," which consists of the land surface that drains into a local water body, such as a stream, river, or lake. Our behavior impacts these local water bodies, and it is our responsibility to protect water quality and improve our local watershed.

In 2003, an exciting water stewardship pilot program took place in the Four Mile Run Watershed in Northern Virginia. Arlingtonians for a Clean Environment (ACE), in partnership with Arlington County, Falls Church, and Alexandria, and Empowerment Institute, developed and implemented the Livable Neighborhood Water Stewardship Program.

In this program, volunteers recruit their neighbors to form a team, and then team members work together to become better water stewards. A workbook with a menu of carefully crafted actions is available to guide the neighborhood groups. All the actions in the workbook are designed to foster water-friendly lifestyles, with three topic areas: water quality, water conservation, and community involvement. The program consists of an initial informational meeting, followed by three program meetings over a two-to-three month period.

ACE and their partners applied for and received additional funding to expand the watershed stewardship team program in 2004. We are currently looking for team leaders. A representative of the program from Arlington Co. or ACE can speak to your group about protecting water quality, and give you more information about this program and how it works. EPA is interested in doing a national pilot of this program across the country, so we could be a pilot city in their program.

The next training for team leaders will take place on Sun., June 6.
